The CRUX China Fund underperformed the MSCI China All Shares index this month by 2%, falling 1.6%. The main positive contributors to fund performance came from the Materials, Real Estate, and Financials sectors. Search engine, media and robotaxi company Baidu, phone recycler ATRenew, and social media platform Kuaishou were our top contributors. The main negative contributors came from the Industrials, Health Care, and Communication Services sectors. Our underweight position in the large internet benchmark names Tencent and Alibaba were the main detractors to performance this month. This month we initiated a small position in an e-commerce company that has successfully transformed from providing online education.
